INTIMIDATION THREATS.

Just why any man should desire to destroy the Republican and damn its editor, we are not to count on its inability to judge. The public is advised as to our conduct, our readers will bear us witness that we have been very frank in dealing with our opponents, but have always adhered strictly to the truth and the facts with which we have dealt. Shall the freedom of the press be denied? Ought we keep mum, while the enemy stands back and revels in the perpetuity of billingsgate and false charges and unrelenting lies? Is a man not justified in self-defense; in fighting for political and social equality; in standing out boldly for the principles he holds sacred; in calling a halt on the rabid, the ambitious revolutionist, the rule or ruin element in politics; in exposing the records of public men, when they desert their party, play demagogues, or turn traitors to their constituency? Why should any member of the Democratic ticket desire to see us wiped from the face of the earth, is it because we have openly, knowingly and willfully misrepresented their records? Most assuredly not this, for our argument stands uncontradicted by those whose records have been exposed, or by the mouthpiece of the party. We have brought some very grave charges against some of these men and not one has been challenged or questioned. Certainly if our conduct was so odious, abusive and deserving rebuke somebody, somewhere would lead us to a post of correction. Take not what we say, dear reader, but note our conduct and what our enemies have to say about it. They abuse us to the extent of their vocabulary, but never attempt to correct, either through their mouthpiece or otherwise any argument we submit. We have recently dumped some bombs into the camp of the enemy and are satisfied that something has been hit, since some of the boys have been blowing off their heads.

THE REPUBLICAN has been advised that its editor is to receive "a damn good beating" right soon, if he don't change his course, which is dead certain not to do. Of course we are in the month for several days, and will have to be a little keener what we say, for we are given fair warning that the "licking" is to be a "damn good one." It is feared that he was "bent half taunted up, and fancied himself to be a colossal monster, very similar to Mark Twain's king of the Mississippi, and Mark pictures him with everything but horns. To be more explicit of our meaning, we give Twain's description of what our enemy fancies he really is:

"Whoop! I'm the old original iron-jawed, brass-mounted, copper-bellied, corpse-maker from the wilds of Arkansas! Look at me! I'm the man they call Sudden Death and General Desolation! Sired by a hurricane, dam'd by an earthquake, half-brother to the cholera, nearly related to the smallpox on the mother's side! Look at me! I take nineteen alligators and a bar'l of whiskey for breakfast, when I'm in robust health, and a bushel of rattlesnakes and a dead body when I'm ailing. I spit the everlasting rocks with my glance, and I quench the thunder when I speak! Whoop! Stand back and give me room according to my strength! Blood's my natural drink, and the walls of the dying are music to my ear! Cast your eyes on me, gentlemen! and lay low and hold your breath, for I'm 'bout to turn myself loose!"

Being warned of the dangers and threatened annihilation, by a friend, he inquired if we weren't a little apprehensive of such a giant-like man exterminator. Whereupon we suggested that we could best illustrate our oneness by relating a little Sunday School story, which reads thus:

Recently we learned of a lady, who was very attentive and dutiful to her Sunday School class of little boys; she was bright, brilliant and highly cultured and would frequently lecture her class. One day after the routine of class work had been completed, she entered into a vivid description of the devil, to the tender young superstitious minds, picturing him with horns, hoofs and a long tail, a perfect man-eater, and on concluding her lecture, she quizzed some of the boys to see whether or not it had been effective. Turning to Tommy, she asked, "Tommy, are you afraid of the devil?"

"Yes, indeed, I'm 'fraid of the devil!"

"Bill, are you afraid of the devil?"

"Law yes, Miss Mary, I'm awfully 'fraid of the devil!"

"How about you, Johnnie, are you afraid of the devil, too?"

"Well, don't know much, 'recon might be 'fraid of that sort of devil, but if you'll just trot out any little old devil my size, I'll give him hell!"

LET JUSTICE REIGN.

Within the past ten days, Mr. Justice Goebel has been indicted in two cases for obtaining money from city officials of Covington because he was instrumental in obtaining the positions which they held. One salary was $150 per month and $50 of that amount was appropriated to the private use of Justice Goebel for his services in securing the office. Before the ink had hardly dried on the indictment, his brother, Arthur Goebel, had published a signed card, asking the public to withhold judgment against his brother until he could be heard in the case. There was nothing wrong in this, nothing unfair; it was a reasonable request, but, how vastly different to the case of those charged, in an indictment, of being accessories to the murder of a public official; how different is the action of Arthur Goebel in this matter, to the case of Caleb Powers, when he even aided in purchasing evidence to hang an innocent man, and taking the stand himself.

Indeed, a vast chasm exists between the demands of Arthur Goebel and the actions of the Democratic nominees for county offices, in this county, in prejudging Gov. Taylor; in thrusting a poisoning in the Heckham procession last fall, purporting to represent Gov. Taylor shooting Senator Goebel. Taylor has never been tried yet he has been convicted by every man, now asking the people for official honors, on the Democratic ticket. All these fellows have convicted him and would rejoice to see him hung by the neck on a limb until dead.

No man should be convicted without a fair and impartial trial. The court should be fair and just in its rulings; its instructions to the jury ought to be delivered with the one end in view, to obtain justice. How different it was in the Powers case. The jury should be selected according to the law, without stopping to ask what political party a man affiliates with. How different was it in the trial of Powers. The evidence adduced in the case ought not come from perjured souls, prowlers after human blood, sneaks and varnishes that infect the sub-oceanic regions, the enticing influence of the tunes of a $100,000 corruption fund ought not be written toward the throne of justice; the man that sells his neighbor's life for dollars and cents ought not be tolerated in an American court; the unlives over hills and mountains into the deep valley of the Kentucky, through the solidarity of filthy lucre, ought not be admitted in court as testimony. Justice should be administered to all criminals alike. The color of his skin or his standing in life should cut no figure in the case. Rigid justice should be administered to Justus Goebel. If he be guilty, as the testimony before the grand jury indicates, he is a criminal, and is no better than the sneak that prowls by night and appropriates to his own use the hard earned savings of the farmer or the industrious merchant or the diligent banker.

Certainly we are favorable to an impartial trial to Mr. Goebel, but our point is this: What right has Arthur Goebel to demand that the public mind stay its sentence on his brother, when he, and a large per cent. of his political brethren, passed sentence on every Republican official, who was elected in '99 immediately on learning the news of Senator Goebel's death, declaring that the rightful governor should hang while the entire Republican party should suffer damnation forever.

It is right and fair to stay the public verdict in the Justus Goebel case, until a jury hears all the unbiased and unperjured testimony, is it not equally right that those charged with a conspiracy to kill Senator Goebel, should be considered innocent until proven guilty in an American court of justice? For more than twelve months Arthur Goebel has had Caleb Powers convicted in his own judgment; he has spent a great portion of his time to convict him, regardless of his innocence, he has even accompanied the notorious Tom Campbell into the hills and valleys of the much abused mountainous district to find the employees of that $100,000 corruption fund, and yet, when a member of his family gets his head in the halter, he becomes a pious peevish, seeker for leniency, for moderate justice, for the withstanding of public condemnation. He forgets his own record and prays his neighbors for what he denied them. We want those indicted to stand on the same footing. Because this man's name is Goebel is no reason that he should be adjudged innocent, while another is convicted in advance of a fair hearing, because his name is Powers.

Caleb Powers has been in jail a long while; he has been accorded a mock trial, but even in advance of it he had been convicted by the same man who now asks leniency. Caleb Powers may be guilty, he may deserve death, but he has never been proven guilty and the fact that he ought to die has never been established. Let justice reign. Before a man is condemned by the public, he is entitled to a hearing, under American jurisprudence. In law, give us no favorite; in court, take to your politics, and when it comes to summoning a jury do it according to law, and not swear a man to conviction before the evidence is heard. Give Mr. Goebel a hearing, give him a jury from the wheel in regular order: eliminate the Finley Andersons, the Robert Noakes and the Stralling Weavers, and blood money; give him a fair trial under American laws, and while this is what we ask for Mr. Goebel, may we not ask the same for Caleb Powers, and every other man indicted.

TRY TO IMAGINE!

"Stick your hand in the snare or perch, I'll take you and my heart to the vote!" Try to imagine Daniel Webster making this declaration in the Kentucky Legislature—(Hartford Herald).

Yes if your imagination is elastic enough, try to imagine Daniel Webster casting his vote in a Kentucky Legislature to seat a man, in the governor's chair, who had actually been defeated by a majority of twenty-three hundred and eighty-three votes of sturdy Kentuckians.

Try to imagine again, Daniel Webster calling for a contest after being legally and fairly defeated by his fellow-countrymen.

Try to imagine Daniel Webster (after a law) that "removes every element of chance from an election." Try to imagine Daniel Webster accepting a stolen office.

Try to imagine Daniel Webster indulging the recent contest and the overthrow of political equality, civil liberty and the Constitution.

Try to imagine Daniel Webster trying the gods to "hang his successful rival and damn the opposing party," because he had been defeated.

the confuses of his cranium, then report what Daniel would have done had he been Gov. Taylor's opponent.

GOVERNOR TAYLOR'S CALAMITIES.

Governor Taylor is certainly the most miserable and the most unfortunate man in all America. Already he has been the object of calamity and calamity's children for two long years and now that he has lost his devoted companion, by death, he is left alone to toll through life broken in heart and spirit; disappointed and driven from the land of his nativity, and for what? Because he had been elevated from the lowly walks of life by his fellow-countrymen, to a high position of honor and distinction. From the rugged pathway of poverty he toiled and combated with the misfortunes of life, overcoming all obstacles, until he reached the highest position in the gift of the State. Two years ago just now his party made him its nominee for Governor over two other excellent gentlemen. He went into the campaign with six chances in seven against him and won a splendid victory. He waged the battle on the right of Kentuckians to self-government, civil liberty and the supremacy of liberty, which the guardian angel of America guarantees to every citizen.

From the cabins in the mountains to the palaces of the Blue Grass and through the "peonyville," he made an aggressive fight, daring his opponent to face him with the people and uphold the principles which he represented, but like all cowards, he refused to meet him. As a reward for his manly, energetic campaign, and as a rebuke to him, the father of the Goebel law, the people made him Governor by 2,383 majority votes, after many thousands had been taken from his credit, but careless in choosing a legislature that had the brazen audacity to overthrow the majority rule. After having been legally and constitutionally inducted into office, a contest was demanded by the rabid partisans. Having a majority in the legislature that were ready rebels against the citizens of Kentucky, it was an easy matter to accomplish their purpose. But, during this contest, farcical barbaric as it was, when evidence was only heard against him, he unflinchingly stood up for the people. During the long proceedings of the contest which followed, his wife and little children were treated with scorn and contempt everywhere they went, by the fanatics of Frankfort. When they were upon the streets they were stoned and scoffed at, when they went into the city schools they were spat upon and most shamefully abused until they were forced to quit school, and when they sought retreat in the home circle, they were constantly under the eye of prowling assassins. This strain upon the nerves of Governor and Mrs. Taylor cannot be comprehended by those who only read the story of their trials. Finally, having been driven from the State, he, with his family, sought a home in Indiana, under the protection of its beloved Governor, from the prowling assassins and the influence of that $100,000 blood money. Here, broken-hearted, her nervous system, the constant pray of the cultures that had chased her husband for months and months, her feeble constitution gave down under the enormous strain and another victim of the assassins was delivered up.

In view of these facts, the Democratic ticket, here in Ohio county, who endorse every step that has been taken against Kentucky's rightful Governor, every calamity that has befallen him and who, themselves, painted and stuck upon a pole, a picture, purporting to represent Gov. Taylor shooting Senator Goebel and paraded it in a procession from Beaver Dam to Hartford and there put it in the hands of a son of a candidate, to shake in the face of the beer-fatted, furious Ollie James, have the gall to come to the citizens of this county and say: "There is no politics in this campaign, you shall not drag us into the discussion of State issues, you mustn't talk to us about these things, if you do, you are liable to be insulted." Ah, good people, can't you see the point? How eager they are, how anxious they are for the name of W. S. Taylor to be forgotten by you. These candidates know that W. S. Taylor was your idol whom they have so shamelessly mistreated. They know that no man on earth is quite so dear to this people as the man whom they elected Governor, whom these candidates helped to unseat and drive from the State. Gov. Taylor is much loved by the citizens of this county, because they know him, because he was reared in the shadow of their own houses, and they love him the more because he has been so cruelly and inhumanly culled and driven from a fortune of $25,000 which they amassed in giving him.

Twelve months ago the Herald scribe was heartily endorsing Mr. Watterson's trunk statement: "Under the operation of the Goebel law, the result of the election is not left to chance." The scribe now repudiates Watterson and will finally go after Mr. Goebel for his revolutionary aspirations at McHenry. Oh, but Goe-

An Editor's Mistake.

The editor of a weekly journal lately lost two of his subscribers through accidentally departing from the beaten track in his answers to correspondents. Two of his subscribers wrote to ask him remedy for their respective troubles. No. 1, a happy father of twins, wrote to inquire the best way to get them safely over their teething and No. 2 wanted to know how to protect his orchard from the myriads of grasshoppers. The editor framed his answers upon orthodox lines, but unfortunately transposed their two names, with the result that 1, who was blest with twins, read, in reply to his query, "Cover them carefully with straw and set fire to them, and the little pests after jumping about in the flames a few minutes will speedily be settled." While No. 2, plagued with grasshoppers, was told to "Give a little castor oil, and rub their gums gently with a bone ring."—Boston Traveler.

In Memory

Of Mrs. Dorothea Yates Park, wife of Sherman A. Park, whose goodness, womanly kindness and sweet piety have been felt by the writer in common with many others, this notice is dedicated. In 1891 Miss Dorothea Yates married Mr. S. A. Park and their union was blessed with four children—three boys and one girl. For the past two years Mrs. Park had been very weak and suffered much, but neither suffering nor approaching death could shake a trust repose in God or lessen the love and interest in her family. In reflecting on her unassuming life and Christian death the lines of Dryden seem peculiarly fitting. "Death ere thou hast slain remaineth still. Wise and good and pure is she. The soul shall show his dart at thee!" E. W.

Poison Oak Poison Ivy

BOTANICAL REPTILES

Their Sting Sets the Skin on Fire and Fills the Veins with a Violent, Lingering Poison

These plants seem to partake of the nature and character of the serpent; in winter time being comparatively harmless, but when warmed into life by spring and summer heat they become extremely venomous and spiteful, emitting a milky juice that burns and blisters like a fiery acid, producing quick inflammation and painful swelling. Some persons are so susceptible to these vegetable poisons that coming in their vicinity will produce almost as much discomfort and pain as handling them; their thin and sensitive skins seem to absorb from the surrounding atmosphere the acrid juices emanating from these plants. There is seldom a picnic or family gathering in the woods but that some member of the party comes in contact with Poison Ivy, Oak or some other hurtful plant or weed, and through the open pores the poison is carried to the overheated blood. Poison Ivy is found clinging to tree trunks, fences or rocks, sometimes reaching great heights; the leaves are nearly square in shape, smooth and shiny and three on each stem; the flowers are of a greenish white color, and the berries pale green or white. The Oak is a small shrub, seldom more than three feet high, its size depending upon the nature of the soil, location, etc.; the leaves are long and pointed with saw-like edges, and the underside of the leaves are entirely unlike in appearance, the poisonous effects are very similar. After the swelling subsides the skin remains for a long time in a rough and inflamed condition, dotted here and there with bad looking ulcers and little festering sores. It is truly remarkable with what regularity and certainty the disease returns, and always on schedule time, appearing the same month, day and hour, almost that it did the year before. Don't be deceived should all the signs of the poison vanish soon after the first attack—the acrid juices have been taken through the open skin pores into the blood, and the most persistent and faithful use of external remedies can never dislodge them, and next season, and for years to come, you may expect to endure the same bodily tortures; the blood in the meantime becoming so saturated and charged with the poison that each succeeding attack leaves the body weaker and recovery more uncertain and slow, and thus the once simple malady ends disastrously.

BLOOD SATURATED WITH POISON OAK.

Mr. John Friel, of Bear Station, Del., writes: "I was poisoned with poison oak and my condition became so serious that the doctors all said I could not get well. I remained in a precarious condition, confined to the house, for six months, when I saw S. S. S. advertised and began its use, soon realizing that it was doing me good. I continued the medicine and was cured entirely. I think it the best blood medicine made."

Returned Every Spring for 18 Years. Mrs. A. J. Bennett, of Tooele, Ga., whose case is similar to thousands of others who come in contact with these plants, says: "When eight years old my little brother and I were poisoned by handling poison oak, and it broke out on us every spring for sixteen years. Both of us recommended S. S. S., which cured us completely, and we have seen no signs of the eruptions for several seasons."

For every poisonous plant, tree, shrub or flower, nature has wisely provided an antidote or cure. The roots and herbs of which S. S. S. is composed quickly, surely and permanently overcome and drive out of the blood and system the effects of Poison Ivy, Poison Oak, Virginia Creeper, Thunder Weed, Sumac and vegetable poisons of every variety. S. S. S. will be found an invaluable and perfect antidote for poisons of this class. There is never any return of the aggravating symptoms after a course of S. S. S., as it destroys every vestige of the poison.

Don't abandon hope because of repeated failures. State your case to our doctors; we feel sure they can help you. Medical advice will cost you nothing and is strictly confidential. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

The Institute.

The Institute is fast approaching, only one more week intervenes for the preparation for the duties which each teacher is expected to meet. The Institute ought to be a success, for nothing is more indicative of good work in the school room than good work in an Institute. Our Institute ought to improve in its advancement each year, our teachers ought to improve their work over the past year, and no better opportunity to display this advancement will be afforded than in the Institute hall. The Superintendent and Instructor are doing everything in their power to make an interesting and profitable Institute. A lecture will be delivered Tuesday night by Rev. H. Boice Taylor, a brilliant and scholarly young divine, while Thursday night Hon. Alf Taylor will explore the beautiful realm of "Poetry and Pearls." A large attendance is expected to attend this lecture course during the Institute, for it promises to be the most interesting event of the summer for our people. Remember week after next is the Institute, get ready and make yourself conspicuous that week with your presence and thus encourage the young educators, the Superintendent and Instructor.

Withdrawal.

Ballietown, Ky., July 19 1901.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:

Owing to the condition of my health and realizing that if nominated, I would be compelled to canvass the district, which I would be unable to do, I have concluded it best for me to withdraw from the field as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Magistrate in the Crowell Magisterial District. Thanking my many friends for the interest they have manifested in my behalf, I remain,

Very truly,

L. ROGERS.

Dave Smith Killed.

"Wild Cat" Dave Smith is no more. He was shot and instantly killed at 11 o'clock to-day by Charles Brown, two miles from Whitesville.

Smith was in Whitesville this morning to purchase some goods and about 10:30 left for his home, about three miles south of the town. When about two-thirds of the way home, he met Charles Brown, a neighbor, with a shotgun. What passed between the two men is not known, but Brown fired one shot, which entered Smith's body, killing him instantly. Brown was on foot at the time of the shooting, but he went back home at once and got his horse and started to Owensboro to give himself up.

The men had been enemies for a long time, and it came to a culmination over the ownership of a goat. Smith had made a number of threats against Brown, and when he passed Brown's place he undertook to drive off the goat, which was claimed by Brown. The killing occurred almost in front of Brown's house, and the little that is known of it is what he told his family before he left. Smith was not armed at the time of the shooting.

News of the killing reached Whitesville in twenty minutes after it occurred, and the marshal thought of holding an inquest until advised that he could not do it. The body at 2 o'clock this afternoon was lying in the road where it had fallen, and it will likely remain there until the arrival of Coroner Hayden, who went up this afternoon to hold the inquest.

Brown's family told the men who went out from Whitesville that he had started to Owensboro to surrender but they do not believe it. From some preparation he had made they thought it more probable that he had gone out of the State.

Brown is known as a quiet citizen, and has never been in trouble before. He has a wife and several children.

Smith was 55 years old, and has always been known as one of the toughest men in the country. Many years ago he was tried in the Davies circuit court on a charge of stealing wool and sent to the penitentiary for a term of years. He was the hero of a thousand fights, more or less, and had the scars of many a battle on his body.—Wednesday's Inquirer.

WILL BE

Hon.

Alf. Taylor's

Lecture

—ON—

"Poetry and Pearls"

—AT—

HARTFORD,

Thursday Evening July 25,

AT 8 O'CLOCK.

During the past two seasons Mr. Taylor's lecture, entitled "Poetry and Pearls," has met with such universal success as to place him among the foremost platform entertainers of America. With the magnetism and power of a great orator, he sweeps from picture to picture, displaying an individuality of manner and a beauty of expression which thrills and enraptures those who hear him.

"Poetry and Pearls" is more than a mere speech. It is a beautiful prose poem, sparkling with metaphor and allegory and simile, and effervescent with wit and humor.

Tickets are on sale at R. T. Collins' dry goods store. They are going fast and you should come or send at once and select your seat.

Reserved Seats, 50c.
